DOCFILM

Bosom Bullies – Trump and Putin

Donald Trump and Vladimir Putin – two presidents, one mission: To make their nations “great” again. Trump moved into the White House in November 2016. Although he was Moscow’s preferred candidate, within a few months the relationship between the two nations soured to levels not seen since the end of the Cold War. The two-part documentary Bosom Bullies – Trump and Putin analyzes the dramatic ebb and flow of US-Russian ties as well as the personal relationship between the two men. Politicians, insiders and experts discuss the question of what Trump and Putin have in common and where the boundaries in their cooperation lie.

GLOBAL 3000

The Future of Cities

Sustainability, good infrastructures and digitalization are the main goals of a smart city. The South Korean city of Songdo is doing particularly well in this regard. The city close to Seoul was drawn up by architects and built on a polder area gleaned from marshy tidal flats. But it comes with a price. Only the wealthy can afford to live there. And surveillance shouldn’t bother them: More than 1,000 cameras monitor public spaces. On the other hand, 40 percent of the city is parkland, solar modules on skyscrapers built to the latest standards of efficiency utilize solar energy and everything is digitally integrated. Songdo is currently home to around 100,000 people. But what concepts exist for the rapidly-growing megacities of the global south? How can their sustainability be improved? Global 3000 devotes a special edition to the issue.

Markneukirchen may be a small town in southern Saxony, but when it comes to the music industry, it’s up there with the greats. This is because for more than 350 years, the Vogtland region of southern Germany has produced instruments sought after by musicians from all over the world. The area is viewed as the center of European instrument manufacturing. Clients include members of many top orchestras and bands such as Metallica and U2. Euromaxx tunes into the sounds from the Vogtland valley.

Collected Memories

The Gaza Strip – a battle-scarred war zone sealed off by Israel and controlled by Hamas. In the 1940s, Kegham Djeghalian, an Armenian, was one of the first photographers to open a studio in Gaza City. His photographs, taken between 1945 and 1970, show a little-known side of Gaza. Luckily it has been possible to salvage part of his unique archive. The documentary Collected Memories – A Treasure Trove of Photographs of Gaza affords a captivating glimpse into the history of this territory.

Europe – The Cradle of Humanity?

Does the cradle of humankind lie not in Africa, but in Europe? New findings indicate this: A more than seven-million-year-old lower jawbone found in Athens and a tooth found in Bulgaria bear pre-human characteristics. On the island of Crete, fossilized footprints suggest that here, a creature walked upright six million years ago – earlier than in Africa. And in Bavaria, the paleontologist Madelaine Böhme has unearthed an ancient species of ape that could be the last common ancestor of modern apes and humans. Does the history of human evolution need re-writing? DW broadcasts the documentary Europe – The Cradle of Humanity?

FIT UND GESUND

Navigating Sexuality

One day, a child will ask where babies come from. This is a key moment, as the family response to this question can have a huge bearing on how that child deals with matters relating to sexuality later in life. But all too often, that response is less than direct. The subject of sex is frequently forced into a cultural and religious corset. Instead of information, young people are met with a wall of silence as the issue is ignored and regarded as taboo. On the other hand, they have easy access to porn with its completely unrealistic portrayal of sex. So how can parents and schools convey a positive understanding of sexuality? How best to talk about love, fulfilling partnership, wellbeing, homosexuality, Aids, unwanted pregnancies and sexual violence? In Berlin, medical students have been working with young refugees on an education program that provides information in the true sense of the word. They tell Fit und gesund what it's all about.

Nollywood

According to UNESCO, the world's second-largest movie industry calls itself Nollywood and is based in Lagos, Nigeria. The opportunities presented by this flourishing sector attract a vast range of characters: Director Abba Makama believes the moment has come for an intellectual cineastic movement, a kind of Nigerian "Nouvelle Vague." Berlin investor Bastian Götter relates how he and his Nigerian partner have founded what is now the largest movie streaming service in Africa. And film producer Don Omope has every intention to ride the wave: "We're here to become the Nigerian Tarantinos and Spielbergs." Nollywood – the documentary on DW.
